Located in a top-ranked city

The Southern Illinois University Carbondale (SIU) campus is in Carbondale, Illinois, a true college town and home to 30,000 residents. The city is about 160 km south of St. Louis, Missouri.

Illinois is in the area known as the Midwest, or the Heartland, of the United States. Southern Illinois is a unique region within Illinois. It lies between two major rivers, the legendary Mississippi River and the Ohio River. Unlike the rest of the state, which is predominantly level farmland, Southern Illinois is known for the Shawnee National Forest, and for its scenic bluffs, rolling hills, and, more recently, for its wine and fruit production.

Students and residents take advantage of the natural beauty of the area for such activities as boating, fishing, hiking, rock climbing, and horseback riding. Carbondale itself offers a mixture of national-brand stores and small shops and restaurants. Carbondale was recently named “The Best Small City in Illinois” in the national publication, Life in America’s Small Cities.
